We may be a nation of tea drinkers, but come the evenings and weekends, it's a change of glass and tittle to the euphoric fizz of Prosecco.

Brits are the biggest drinkers of Italy's golden sparkling export; figures from the Prosecco DOC Consortium showed that the UK imported 130 million bottles in 2022, a 3.5 per cent increase on 2021 volumes - and there's no sign of the bubble bursting yet. Made in the same way as Champagne, it's a lot lighter on the wallet than its French counterpart, which goes some way to explaining its popularity.

The lower cost means it can be a bottle for big occasions and smaller-scale events too; you could just as easily enjoy a flute to mark a birthday or toast the end of the working week.

What types of Prosecco are there?

Typically made in a northeastern pocket of Italy in the shadow of the Italian Alps, Prosecco comes in various degrees of fizziness: spumante (sparkling), frizzante (semi-sparkling) and tranquillo (still).

How can you tell Prosecco is authentic?

It's simple: look for the letters DOC or DOCG on the label. Translated from Italian, DOCG is short for Denomination of Controlled and Guaranteed Origin, while DOC stands for Denomination of Controlled Origin. These letters rubber-stamp the high quality of the sparkling elixir within and reassure shoppers that the Prosecco they're sipping is the real deal.

When is National Prosecco Day?

We love the sparkling drink so much that a day has been dedicated to it. If you need a reason to pop a cork, National Prosecco Day is on August 13.

The sparkling wine category is booming right now, to such an extent that supermarkets now dedicate entire aisles to the stuff. Made with producers big and small, they help to level the bubbly playing field and bring prices into a more affordable range. We've rounded up the best bottles worth splashing out on below.

Whether you're bulk buying for an event like a special brunch, birthday or wedding, or you just fancy picking up a chilled bottle to upgrade a weekend dinner, make it feel extra special with a bottle of Prosecco.

Kylie Minogue Prosecco Rosé NV

KYLIE MINOGUE PROSECCO

Whether it's love at first sight (sip?) or a few glasses leave you spinning around, the star factor is clear in Kylie's pink Prosecco. So clear in fact, that it's one of the UK's best-selling bottles with someone drinking her wine every 1.5 seconds, according to recent sales data. Talk about top of the pops.

Expect crisp, fresh notes of strawberries, raspberries and blossom bubbling out of the flute.

Tesco Finest Prosecco Valdobbiadene DOCG

With grapes plucked from the finest vineyards in the heart of Italy's Prosecco region, this bottle is lovely with canapés and rich puddings. There's a pleasing amount of fizz and a delicious honey flavour that keeps you coming back for more.

Buy now £9.50, Tesco

M&S Conte Priuli Oro Prosecco Magnum

There's nothing like a magnum to get celebrations off to a cracking start. M&S's gilded bottle looks as luxe as it tastes, with the crisp bite of a Granny Smith. Whether you're looking for a crowd-pleasing gift to take to a party or you want to treat your friends to a drop of something special, it won't fail to hit the mark.

Buy now £20, Ocado

Sainsbury's Conegliano Prosecco, Taste the Difference 75cl

SAINSBURY'S

The perfect pour for warm weather, Sainsbury's own-brand Taste the Difference Prosecco is full of sweet apricot and sharp lemon flavour. It's a natural partner for light snacks like olives and antipasti; a lovely aperitif to prep your tastebuds for the main course.

Bottega

BOTTEGA

With its gilded bottle, Bottega may look like a flashy new brand, but it's been around since the 17th century with a portfolio that also spans grappa and award-winning liquors.

Starting from a humble vineyard, spumante Prosecco started being bottled in 1992, with the now-familiar gold bottles sitting pretty as the best-selling sparkling wine in travel retail since 2017, according to IWSR rankings.

No wonder; the bottle makes an impressive gift for wine drinkers and its contents are a delight too, with Glera grapes offering refreshing notes of apple, pear, acacia and lily.

Mionetto Orange Label Prosecco 75cl

MIONETTO

With a history dating back to 1887, Mionetto is one of the finest winemakers Italy has to offer. This extra-dry 11 per cent ABV brut is a legacy of its expertise. In an ES taste test, one reviewer remarked that it has a "Nice refined taste, would serve to the in-laws during an awkward dinner party". If that's not a winner...

Freixenet Prosecco D. O. C. 75cl

FREIXENET

If it's glamour you're after, Freixenet offers an easy win. The cut glass bottle offers elegance while the Glera grapes used within are awash with bright, fresh notes. All in all, a bottle that's truly toast-worthy.

Buy now £9.99, Waitrose

Casa Canevel Prosecco DOC Extra Dry

Best served chilled, this beautiful extra dry Prosecco is fizzing with refreshing fruit and floral flavours, making it particularly fitting for lazy summer meals. The rounded bottles makes the 75cl bottle appear fuller, meaning it's the perfect choice for parties and BBQ get-togethers.

Pale Fox Prosecco Alcohol Free

PALE FOX

Billed as ‘the world’s finest Prosecco’, Pale Fox is a super-swanky, single-estate Prosecco from the Asolo region near Venice in Italy. Its alcohol-free offering doesn’t let the side down with a blend of Pinot Grigio and Prosecco grapes used to make a classic wine before removing the booze. The result is complex and celebratory with an extra-dry balance of acidity, fruit and yeasty notes. We love the bottle, too, which looks elegant on the bar and will make non-drinkers feel like grown-ups.
